Ava, age 8

Make sure it's something she likes to eat.

*Whenever you go shopping, even at your local store, there's always something that you need:
one little item more.*

*So back you go, back to the shelf to get that extra one
And then you find that what you want - suddenly, it's gone.*

*It was there the last time you walked by,
a minute or two ago.*

*But that's how the gremlins get you,
by making you walk slow.*

*No need to rush, they make you think: lots of time to shop
And so you ramble round the store, not thinking when to stop.*

*Then suddenly, its afternoon: you've still got things to do.
And the manager of the local store has got his eye on you.*

*Your cart is packed with lots of stuff
you always planned to buy Plus a bunch of other stuff, you bought and don't know why.*

*You pay the bill and load the car -
you can barely close the trunk, Wondering how to explain to him,
just why you bought such junk.
He'll be mad, you know he will,
but probably won't use force,
Although he may start dropping hints
of thinking of divorce.*

*But you know how to handle this - you simply make a deal.
"Just sit down and shut your face - or forget about a meal!"*

It's called "wifely persuasion", some call it a crime.

*But no matter what you call it - it works
most of the time.*

Let me help you find your way home.
